

Integrated model of nursing education, practice and management for quality patient care

Statement of the Problem Testing of an integrated model of nursing education, clinical practice and management through nursing research. Despite education and practice being viewed as inseparable concepts, an education-practice gap still exists in nursing. Bridging the nursing education, practice and management through nursing research will build a positive work culture among educators and practitioners which would lift up the standard of patient care. The purpose of this study is to