

Natural disturbances drive change and shape landscapes, thereby supporting local and regional biodiversity in forested ecosystems. By creating heterogeneity in ecosystem attributes (eg soils and vegetation), these disturbances